

The customer thought they had insurance. Gather found out otherwise.

The truth is: Paper insurance cards are only as accurate as the day they were printed.

We've seen it happen first hand. A customer interested in purchasing a luxury vehicle presented their insurance card to prove coverage. Everything looked good on surface level. The policy appeared to be active and the customer was named as insured. But when Gather verified coverage, we found out the policy was cancelled the month prior. Had the customer taken delivery of the vehicle, the dealer would have been liable for the cost of the car if the customer got into an accident. As our dealer client said, "You just saved me a $145,000 headache."

Verify the active insurance status of every customer with Gather.

We make it easy. The customer simply scans a QR code, takes photos of their driver's license, their insurance card and themselves - and Gather goes to work to:

- Verify the consumer's identity
- Verify the consumer is not a fraud risk
- Verify the consumer has active insurance coverage
- Notify the insurance carrier of the policy update

Just one instance pays for Gather for five years.

What would you rather do? Hedge your bets that you'll never accept an outdated insurance card - or use Gather to eliminate the risk, all while benefiting from Gather's many other features. Don't wait for a mistake to happen. Get started with Gather today.
